Full-stack Developer with focus on Front-end

PROFILE

I hold a vocational degree in front-end development and have also studied electrical engineering at USN. In addition, I have 13 years of work experience in social professions, which I now want to apply to new projects. What drives me is trying out new technologies, designing innovative solutions, and debugging what Codex/AI produces. As a person, I am solution-oriented, able to work under pressure, and can take on a role of responsibility when needed. Although I lack directly relevant work experience, I am eager to learn and curious about most things.
